

has more story then any history book has. Stories from all around the world, from strange lands that are far out of the vikings reach. The fire stop up in front of a painting of a boy and a dragon and a old hand brush over the painting. A smile show up on the old woman's face and she turn to the door at the end of the wall. She walks over to the door, a door that are full of strange signs and unknown languages. The old woman says a word on an unknown language and the door open up to a big room. The old woman has witch blood in her veins, that go long back in her family and she possess many years of wisdom.

In the room there is selves full of bottles with unknown ingredients and unknown elixirs. In the middle of the room a cauldron stands with a pink liquid that bubble up as she get closer to the cauldron. The old woman stop up in front of the cauldron, take the spoon and look down in the cauldron. As she turn the spoon around in the pink liquid, a picture of a boy show up. The boy has eyes as green as the brights forrest and auburn hair. The old woman smile when she see the black dragon beside him. The old woman turn the spoon around in the pink liquid and a picture of a girl with reddish brown hair and beautiful blue green eyes show up. The old woman smile and turn away from her cauldron. She walk over to a self and take out a box with a fade red color. The old woman open up the box and look into it. She smiled, close the box and place it up on the self. The old woman take down a bottle from her self, and walk over to the cauldron. She look into the cauldron, open up the bottle and pour it into the cauldron. The liquid in the cauldron bubble up, turn red and then fall to peace. As the fire in the room fade out, the old woman open her mouth and out come a old raspy voice.

"Soon Night and Timber will join forces and the time of man and dragon living together will start"

* * *

>And so the story begin, yeah :D So I hope that you liked the prologue :D I can tell by now, that I do not know when Chapter 1 is coming out, because I'm still writing Chapter 1. But hopefully it will soon come out.. But I can't promise, since I'm a little busy with school...

The Night Maid

End
file.